Climate Crisis and Sustainability : Vulnerability, Resilience, and Adaptation
| Date | 19(Wed.) - 21(Fir.) July, 2023 | Venue | Jeju National University, Korea  ASIA ASSOCIATION for CRISISONOMY

Ladies and gentlemen,

Above all, I congratulate the Asian Conference on Crisisonomy on being held in Jeju Island. Also, thank you for participating in this meaningful academic conference today.

The climate crisis, with its escalating impact on our planet, has become an undeniable reality. demands our immediate attention, compelling us to seek sustainable solutions that can preserve and protect our fragile society.

And it is our shared responsibility to uplift and support those who are most vulnerable, ensuring their resilience in the face of adversity. Amidst this backdrop, adaptability emerges as a vital skill set for the academic community.

The ability to adapt our approaches, methodologies, and perspectives will be key to addressing the multifaceted nature of the climate crisis. It urges us to think beyond disciplinary boundaries, to collaborate across fields, and to integrate diverse perspectives into our research and solutions. Adaptation encourages us to embrace change and uncertainty, recognizing that flexibility and open-mindedness are the basis of progress.

Our collective efforts in this conference will contribute to our collective understanding and propels us forward.

Thank you, and I wish you all a fruitful and inspiring conference.
